MAILED OVER NEW HEATING SYSTEM FOR CITY HALL.

Thursday evening the building committee of the common council met with Mayor Morris Block and a committee of citizens, composed of Messrs. Millard, Riddick, Watts and Emmet, at the city hall to talk over the advisability of installing a new system of grates in the city hall heating plant. The claim is made that with the installation of the new grates and blowers and motors, screenings and other cheaper grades of coal can be used with as good results as the present hard coal used which costs the city over $13 a ton, while screenings and similar grades can be bought for less than $5 a ton. The building committee is expected to make a report later to the common council.

Conference at M. E. Church

Clinton Avenue Organization Reported in Healthy and Prosperous Condition With New Building to be Ready in April.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church was held Thursday evening at the church at the close of the prayer meeting services. The Rev. George Grinton, district superintendent, presided. Reports from the different departments of the church including the Missionary Societies, Junior and Epworth Leagues and the Sunday School showed the departments in a most excellent condition. The report from the president of the Epworth League was exceptionally interesting as it covered all of the activities of the society for the year.

The quarterly conference endorsed the recent action of the official board in extending a call for the return of the pastor, the Rev. Robert Greenwell, for another year. The recording secretary was instructed to send a request to Bishop Wilson to return Dr. Grinton as district superintendent to this district for another year. Also a resolution was offered instructing the delegate to the general conference from the Kingston District to use his influence for the establishing of a national daily paper.

Dr. W. J. Cranston reported for the board of trustees and the building committee progress in connection with the improvements to the church hall. He reported that the hall would be completed in the early part of April.

Reports submitted showed the church in a healthy and prosperous condition.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

"Tiger Rose" opened at the Keeney Theater Thursday and will be shown again at tonight's performance and on Saturday. Starring in this production is Lenore Ulric, foremost of the Delacoe stars. The story is rife with the breath of the Northwest, where people are stripped of convention and pretense and unfettered by artificial polish and social environment.

At the Opera House this evening in conjunction with the vaudeville and feature picture will be held amateur performances. The vaudeville is a high class bill and the feature picture, "Bright Lights of Broadway," tells very vividly of a country girl's struggles to reach the top of the ladder on New York's great white way.

At the Auditorium today is Jackie Coogan in "Daddy," drawing as many laughs as ever. He is backed by "Mildred," his bottled-in infant who grows to womanhood, the dish of spaghetti (cheer him himself) that he tries to eat, his "Daddy's" puns that won't quite hit, the cow he tries to milk, and the shower bath.

Manager Sherry of the Orpheum Theatre guarantees every act on his bill for the last half of the week as being bigger and better than any so far presented at the Orpheum. The picture, "April Showers," is a story of Irish folk. It is not located in Ireland itself but in one of those intensely little "bit of Old Ireland" communities on the lower East Side of New York. The intimate family life of the tenements was never depicted with more realism for all the contortions now occasioned by families living close together has been caught by Director Tom Forman as well as the sympathy of people who bear troubles in common.

PAUL ZUCCA ADDRESSES KIWANISANS ON MUSIC

Paul Zucca, well known and very busy orchestra leader, gave the vocational talk at the Kiwanis luncheon Thursday at The Advance restaurant, taking, of course, "Music" as his theme. He reviewed the powerful influence that music has always been in the history of the world and said that the old, simple, songs were still most popular among people generally. Mr. Zucca said he came quite naturally by his love for music since his father was in the same profession, at one time was in the chorus at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York City, and could sing from memory forty-five complete operas.

It was voted to send President W. A. Van Valkenburgh of the club to the international convention at Denver in June.

FRENCH HATS ARE COMING THROUGH CUSTOMS

(By Eleanor Gunn.)
As the French bandboxes continue to come through the customs one is impressed again and again by the abundant use of plaids. The idea is not altogether new, but plaid ribbons are rivaling yard goods for draperies which have in turn, a formidable rival in ray striped effects, chief among them the Roman striped silks.

Some authorities have it that the Romans will again become conquerors, for Roman silks are not possible in cheaper grades, since it is the richness of color which commends them. Plaids have started with such tremendous speed that there might be a danger of rushing onto the doom of the overpopular. This cannot occur for awhile, of course, so let us take advantage of the lovely plaids while fashion approves.

The ever popular combination of straw and silk continues to be played up. In straw, Milan has first place for early season wear. We may now say, immediate wear. Lavinia has contributed a tubular straw which she makes into hats, resembling the thatched roof of a Normandy cottage.

Talbot whose word has great weight in millinery circles has created a little cloche, the crown of which looks like great grandmother's night cap. It is gathered into a metal ring, a trimming which she used in many interesting ways. Another of her novelties is a hat made of snake skin.

Bright Color in Chic New Things

Hats, Earrings and Gay Neckwear in Favor; Scotch Plaids Appear.

It is now so usual and is considered smart to wear a string of beads, as well as earrings, brooch and other ornaments, that these appear in the shops in new versions almost daily. It would seem that the entire world had been run in the matter of beads, colors and designs, observes a writer in the New York Times in these days no woman is seen in morning, afternoon or evening without a necklace of some sort. These wares are the most decorative that shopkeepers have ever had the opportunity of presenting to a smartly dressed public, and their very display helps to sell them.

At the moment amethyst matrix is a tremendous favorite, quite supplanting carnelian, amber, topaz, jade, rose quartz and crystal. Amethyst is in itself so colorful that the matrix beads, with their crackly surface, make the most lovely bead strings, especially when put together with slight cut crystal.

As innovation in neckwear is platted colored organdie, sold by the yard, of which to make collars and cuffs. There is quite a craze for these colored muslins, and white is less worn than ever before. The plating is printed or beamed, and sometimes is finished with a scalloped or pointed edge. It is very chic, especially for the flat round collars and narrow cuffs of the one-piece coat dresses.

From the Highlanders of Scotland kilts are borrowed. Historic clan kilts now appear in the frocks, millinery and many fashionable toilet accessories. Most important is the over-shoulder made like the juniors' middie, a bright-cut garment from shoulder to hip line, where it is held to the skirt with a wide belt or sash. Numerous houses in this new model are made in crepe, silk, satin, lingette, silk or embroidered.

But a chic waist is that of plaid silk, worn with a skirt of plain color, colored or platted. One most effective of black velvet, to which the right plaid gives a merry contrast.

The fad for gay plaid materials is seen in the jaunty turbans, parasols, bags, ash ribbons, petticoats, brassieres and the like. A very late thing in umbrellas is not the virtuous old black cloth we were reared to regard as correct, but a flashy thing covered with plaid silk, Scotch or whatever, so it be gay.

Smart Cloche Is Made Entirely of Ribbons

The snappy cloche is made entirely of ribbons. It is double-faced in American Beauty and gold trimmed with pearls to harmonize.

Cover and Score Pad That Will Add Cheer

Along the business knows that for a large trouble the right kind of cover is necessary, so she gets a square piece of black satin and borders with inch-wide gold metallic ribbon, with a luxurious tassel at each corner, which gives it weight and balance. The border is put on with liquid glue, then the spread along each edge of the ribbon, applied a few inches at a time and allowed to "set" before the corners are joined. Use only the best quality liquid glue.

A score pad to match the table cover made by covering an ordinary pad with black satin ribbon, bordered with gold metallic ribbon. All of the work is done with the best quality liquid glue. Material required: Five yards of 3 1/2-inch ribbon for cover, two yards for lining and pocket cover, and two yards of one-half-inch ribbon for border.

Three-Quarters Length Coat Is Worn in Paris

The very short and the very long have passed from the picture for the moment at least, and the three-quarters length coat is everywhere in evidence in Paris. Belts and other means of fastening are taboo on these models, which are wrapped closely about the figure and held in place by a zipper. They are developed from the simple and the simple in bright colors and are bound with black silk. Equestrian style of the past, has been revived and is extensively used to ornament these coats, so necessary for the winter in its cooler moments.

Exact Length of a Year.

The exact interval during which the earth makes one complete and absolute revolution around the sun is not a determined year and astronomer have determined that it consists of 365 days, 5 hours, 9 minutes and 9.6 seconds, which is invariable.

Oldest Jewish Church in U. S.

Touro park, in Newport, R. I. was named for Judah Touro, an eccentric, great-hearted Jew, who left the town $10,000 for its purchase in 1854. Near by is a little Jewish cemetery, which is one of the ornaments of the city and not far away, in Touro street, one is brought to the synagogue of the oldest Jewish congregation in America, says the Detroit News. The congregation of Salvation of Israel was organized in 1680. The synagogue was built in 1763. One of the scrolls of the law deposited in the synagogue and now more than 400 years old, was brought from Europe by the Jews who reached Rhode Island in 1658. When the British troops occupied Newport, the Jews, ardent supporters of the American cause, were forced to flee. The synagogue was closed and for almost a century it was deserted.

Philanthropy Misapplied.

"Now, that is one of the most pathetic things I have ever seen," said the rich and benevolent old man, who, on a scorching hot day, stood with a friend, watching a typical street Arab. "You see the ice cart has been delivering at that shop, and the poor little chap has taken a piece from the gutter. Now, you and I, who can get refreshing drink whenever we require it, cannot imagine what a luxury that piece of ice is to that boy. Here, my little fellow, here's a dime. Get yourself a glass of lemonade. You must not eat that stuff. It would make you ill." "I wasn't going to eat it," said the grimy little chap. "I was having a sleep at home, as I was going to drop it down his back."

College Gets Rare Manuscript.

"The Beehive," a monumental manuscript written by Francis Daniel Pastorius, founder of Germantown, has been loaned to the University of Pennsylvania by his descendants," says the Philadelphia North American. "The book, which consists of was written 1,000 closely-written pages, was a legacy to his son and to rest his mind of many facts that are in it. It was never printed. The volume is written in several different languages, including Latin, Greek, German and English. It contains much dry humor mixed with philosophy."

Lost in the Fog.

Children lost in London fog have furnished the laws for many a story. Temporary separation from home and friends is, however, merely one of the minor tragedies shrouded in the murky, health annihilating fogs found, recently it was discovered that the death rate from bronchitis and pneumonia increased sharply during the week following extra heavy fogs. Large quantities of unburnt coal from chimneys of factories and private residences, held in the atmosphere by the fog, are blamed for lowering the individual resistance to the disease germs, and so boosting the death rate.

The Bissextile Year.

The bissextile year, which is commonly known as leap year, has 366 days or one more day than the ordinary year. The origin of the name leap year is unknown, but it probably arose from the fact that any date in a leap year after the added day of February 29 "leaps" over the day of the week on which it would fall in ordinary years. For example: If March 1 falls on Monday in one year, it will fall on Tuesday in the next. It that is an ordinary year of 365 days, but on Wednesday if it is leap year.

Origin of Halloween.

Halloween is the popular name given to the festival of All Saints, celebrated October 31, as the eve of November 1. The Greek church kept a feast of all martyrs and saints on the first Sunday of Pentecost. The object of this day was, in its inception, probably to do honor in bulk to all the lesser saints who could not have a feast specially set apart for them as well as to all holy men and martyrs whose record has not survived.

Dropped First Name.

It is a curious fact that three of the last eight presidents of the United States deliberately dropped the first of their baptismal names when they came to manhood. Stephen Grover Cleveland became Grover Cleveland. Thomas Woodrow Wilson became Woodrow Wilson. and John Calvin Coolidge became Calvin Coolidge. It took something more than dropping a first name to make these men presidents; but, asks an American writer, "did you ever think that, although nine men out of ten support both a first and middle name, six out of the last eight presidents have borne only a single Christian name?" Apparently there is something in the shorter, crisper form that helps in the game of politics.

Throat Cut by Own Orders.

Joseph Leon Vazquez died here recently at the age of sixty-one. He had no direct heirs and had always lived alone. When his will was opened it was found to contain a curious clause, says a Jordonian letter in Le Petit Parisien (translated for The Kansas City Star). This was to the effect that, after death, Mr. Vazquez desired that his throat be cut from ear to ear in the presence of certain persons named in the will, the physician who was to perform the operation being designated. The provision of the will was carried out to the letter.

Vazquez, who had been a sufferer from cataplexy, had an insane terror of being buried alive. He had decided to take no chances.

Buffalo East of Mississippi.

The first buffalo killed east of the Mississippi river as shot in 1802. The number of buffalo in the West in the early 1800s was estimated roughly at from 3,000,000 to 20,000,000, says the Detroit News. They ranged from Mexico north to the Arctic circle, but their natural home was on the plains between the Mississippi river and the Rocky mountains and not farther south than the Rio Grande. Outside the limits of their habitat the few small herds that existed were stragglers. Daniel Boone once found a herd in Kentucky that numbered 1,000 and it was a large one for that territory.

Dawn.

But while he stood, a subtle change came over the night, and the fire broke round him as if it had waited for him. He turned and looked early. A faint glow came over the distant horizon, and when the first light appeared before him, he was smiling and looking at the dawn. The little began to glow, a flickered, first into rose, and then into a golden glow, the first ray of the sun had broken on a peak of

The Gramplains—"Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush"

First Military Execution in U. S. A conspiracy of the British officers and lords of New York was made in 1776 to end the Revolutionary war by the murder or capture of its leaders, and the seizure or destruction of its supplies. Washington was to be taken alive and delivered to Sir William Howe. Two guards were bribed, but a third pretended to join the plot and exposed it instead. One of the treacherous guards was named Thomas Hickey. He was hanged June 27, 1776, the first military execution in the American army.

He's Lived in London.

Edmond Hoyle lived from 1672 to 1760. Little is known of his early life. It is thought that he was educated for the law. He lived in London for many years, where he taught games. In 1722 he published "A Short Treatise on the Game of Whist" which went through many editions and became the world's authority. Other games have been added and "Hoyle" has grown to be a book of rules and includes many other games that have been invented since the death of Hoyle.

WASHINGTON.

Each year discloses an increasing public desire to get more facts which will show the human nature of George Washington and dispel the cloud of profound dignity and unusual perfection in which some biographers have attempted to shroud him. Each year shows more progress toward the desired goal but there still is a vast difference between the emotion with which the average man of woman looks upon Washington and upon Abraham Lincoln.

Practically the only anecdote anybody recalls in connection with the Father of his Country is the cherry tree story, which no longer is regarded as being true, even by members of the Sunday school infant class. The pedestal on which the father Weems placed Washington, undoubtedly with the best intentions, has not been sufficiently shattered by facts to bring Washington within the human grasp of the average person. Washington still is a demi-god. He is regarded mostly with awe. Lincoln, on the contrary, is regarded not only with reverence but with the same affection which the Union soldiers had for him when they confidentially called him "Old Abe."

Although the American republic had become an established fact at the time that Weems wrote, it must be remembered he lived and wrote in a day when partisan political feeling ran strong, when education was not as general as it has become since, and he may have considered it necessary to feed up the public on a George Washington embalmized in a glory which he believed that day and generation demanded. But Weems overlooked the fact that human nature does not change and that honesty is the best policy. He ignored the fact in favor of delicious episodes in order to create a halo, not realizing that succeeding generations would require a halo of truth which would shine far more brightly than his cherry tree story or any other figment of his imagination.

From what we know now of George Washington, it is safe to assume that he groaned inwardly as he read Weems's stories of what he was supposed to have said and done as boy and man. It is unfortunate that Washington did not have some of the decisive impetuosity of Theodore Roosevelt when he read Weems's book about him for the first time, for then both English literature and the language would have been richer for the reading, and Washington would have stood in fact as well as in motto, "first in the hearts of his countrymen."

In it fitting that upon the anniversary of his birth, each year we should devote some portion of the day to unearthing, if possible, and certainly to study the truth about Washington. Thereby we come to greater admiration of the man that even Weems dreamed to be possible.

Agitation by the Egyptian Women's Society for the abolition of child marriage has brought about the passage of a law fixing the minimum nuptial age in Egypt for boys at 18 years and for girls at 16. Somewhat similar agitation would not be amiss in our own Kentucky, if, as is astonishingly reported in this connection, its laws permit boys of 14 and girls of 12 to marry.

They have troubles of their own in England, too. A member of Parliament has just bewailed conditions there as follows: "There has been a steady and distinct lowering of the whole tone of political life. The amount of lying, slander and utter lack of patriotism or real love for the welfare of the people baffles description. Unless young men and women do really get their minds to insist upon truth, honesty and patriotism in politics, then, I say, heaven help this country!"

A Chicago committee declares it is easier to commit murder and get away with it than to perpetrate any other crime. Out of 270 murders in Chicago last year only one murderer was hanged and only nine sentenced to death. It is not easy to fix the responsibility for such a lax enforcement of the law, but it is manifest that there exists a radical defect which must be discovered and removed.

diminished. Probably Chicago is no worse than other large cities in this respect. The people of every municipality must keep a vigilant eye on the work of their police officers and the judges of their courts if criminals are to be brought to book and promptly and adequately punished. The selection of these officers and judges is in the hands of the people, and their high or low standard is according to popular demand.

THE SAME OLD CURE.

More than twenty years ago I was called to look after a young woman who was having a "spell" of some kind.

She was lying on the floor groaning, holding her hand over her stomach, then over region of appendix, and again grasping her head with both hands. She said she was unable to get up.

Her pulse seemed regular although a little rapid, her tongue looked normal, and I was at a loss as to whether it was appendicitis or some other serious condition.

During the war there were exaggerated cases of the above, some called shell shock, others nerve shock, functional paralysis, and so forth. Some of these men laid in bed or were helped to a sitting position and did not move their bodies voluntarily for weeks.

Many of these cases were simply malingering, but there were others where the chap really thought that he could not move his legs, for instance.

How was the cure brought about? He was told that electric treatment was to be tried out upon him, and he quite willingly consented to it.

When the very strong electric faradic current was applied to his body he gave one leap from his bed and dashed around the room.

The cure was complete. In thinking of these cases of "advanced" treatment for functional paralysis I could not help but think of the old professor and the vigorous measures he would have employed had not my patient got up and walked.

What is the trouble in these cases? Thinking about themselves too much. They get too much sympathy from everybody and make no effort of their will to fight the idea that they are afflicted morales. You can readily see how such a case might respond to a suggestion from a strong willed person, just as readily as from the severe pain of an electric current.

WHY Leaves Change Their Colors in the Autumn.

What takes place when the leaves turn color in the autumn and gives the foliage such brilliant coloring is described as follows:

The green matter in the tissue of a leaf is composed of two colors, red and blue. When the sap ceases to flow in the autumn the natural growth of the tree is retarded and oxidation of the tissues takes place.

Under certain conditions the green of the leaf changes to red; under different aspects it takes on a yellow or brown hue. The difference in color is due to the difference in combination of the original constituents of the green tissues, and to the varying conditions of climate, exposure and soil. A dry, hot climate produces more brilliant foliage than one that is damp and cool.

There are several things about leaves, however, that even science cannot explain. For instance, why one or two trees growing side by side of the same age and having the same exposure, should take on a brilliant red in the fall and the other should turn yellow, or why one branch of a tree should be highly colored and the rest of the tree have only a yellow tint, are questions that are as impossible to answer as why one member of a family should be perfectly healthy and another sickly. Maples and oaks have the brightest colors.—Providence Journal.

Why Firefly Gives Light

How is it that a glowworm or firefly can produce light without heat? When man sets out to make light he can only use 3 per cent of the energy he employs. The other 97 per cent goes in heat.

How do animals sense coming danger when man cannot do so? In the great heat wave of 1921 hundreds of rabbits were seen to desert their burrows on a Yorkshire moor. Two days later a health fire broke out and burned the whole moor. In some Hampshire pine woods the squirrels deserted their homes in exactly similar fashion 24 hours before fire swept the place.

Again, how is it that some creatures can do without water? A parrot kept for 32 years in the London zoo without tasting water, and sheep seem able to get on with very little or no water so long as they get good grass. Many reptiles never drink, but a mole dies if kept for 24 hours without water.

How Steel is Tempered

Chopping a cold crowbar into chunks with an ax and whittling a steel rod into shavings with a pocket-knife are made simple performances through a process of steel tempering that is credited to two investigators in the state of Washington. In fact, a steel ax and pocket knives that have been tempered by the process are alleged to have actually been made to perform these seemingly impossible feats.

The process consists in the use of certain chemicals in water or oil in the tempering vessel. It is declared that any kind of tool—from a blunt hammer head to a keen-edged razor—can be tempered to a perfection never before attained.

How "Rook" Started

The game of chess originated in the Far East, and the piece that we now see shaped like a castle, was in Persian, the "rukh," or soldier.

In India, where a form of chess was much played, the "rukh" or soldier, was represented as fighting from a sort of howdah carried on the back of an elephant. This elephant piece is still to be found in some elaborately carved sets of chessmen of antique manufacture.

But in Europe there seemed no particular reason for retaining the elephant, so the castle-shaped thing upon his back was alone retained, but the old Persian name was not dropped. It merely obtaining the easier pronunciation of "rook."

How Athens Got Emblem

How the olive tree came to be the emblem of Athens is told by Greek mythology. Two deities—Minerva and Neptune—wished to found a city on the same spot, and, referring the matter to Jove, the king of gods and men, decided that the privilege should be granted to whichever would bestow the most useful gift on the future inhabitants. Neptune struck the earth with his trident, and forth came a warhorse. Minerva produced an olive tree, emblem of peace.

Jove's verdict was in favor of Minerva, which thus became the patron goddess of Athens.

How to Make Cement

An effective cement for many substances can easily be made by soaking one part of glue in an equal quantity of water. The glue is removed before it has lost its primitive form, and the swollen mass is then dissolved in one part of linseed oil with the aid of heat until a jelly is formed. This joins wood tightly and is practically waterproof.—Popular Science Magazine.

How to Make Fume Oak

Fumed oak is wood that has been darkened by the fumes from liquid ammonia. The ammonia does not touch the oak, but the gas that comes from it acts in such a manner upon the tannic acid in the wood that it is browned so deeply that a shaving or two may be taken off without marring the color.

Act 1 was staged on the lawn of Mrs. Perrington-Shine's country home. The most exciting part of this act was the presentation of a scarab, an Egyptian bug to the groom by his cousin Solomon Spigot. This Egyptian wedding present proves to be the "Hoodoo." Act 1 ends with trouble for the groom.

Act 2 was staged in the library at 8 p. m. A thief is in the house, making away with the wedding presents and all valuables. Billy Jackson is suspected and this act ends with trouble for him.

Act 3 was staged in the same library at 11 p. m. The burglar is caught by Billy Jackson. The scarab is buried. Bad luck ends and good luck begins. Billy Jackson is cleared. The act ends with theelopement of Doris Ruffles and Billy Jackson, the heart breaker.

On the whole, the entire play was very interesting and exciting, being thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended.

Replaces Bank Share Tax

Moneyed Capital Assessment Question Discussed at Albany Conference—School Taxation in Rural Districts.

Describing the state taxation of moneyed capital as an enactment designed to replace the former tax on bank shares, William King, assistant corporation counsel of New York city, explained in language unhampered by technicalities of the law, in an address before the evening session of the conference of assessors in Chancellor's Hall Wednesday, what is intended in this much discussed statute adopted by the legislature of 1923. Mr. King made very clear to his hearers what constitutes moneyed capital for the purposes of local assessment, and the assessors representing more than 50 counties of the state were loud in their praise of Mr. King for his assistance in helping them to better understand a more or less complex problem.

Supplementing Mr. King's address a very instructive talk on the moneyed capital assessment question was given by the conference by Michael P. Dee, a New York city attorney and a former dean of Fordham Law School. Mr. Dee, in a portion of his address, pointed out the many different opinions that may prevail in as many different localities as to moneyed capital, explaining to the assessors that he had no intention of attacking the law, but was endeavoring to show the possibilities of confusion in the assessment of moneyed capital.

Another speaker of the evening who commanded undivided attention was ex-Senator Martin Saxe of New York city, a former president of the state tax commission. Senator Saxe said he preferred to refrain from any definite or significant remarks on moneyed capital because of the fact that he had and is now acting as attorney in litigation resulting from the bank tax law and the present moneyed capital statute. Appealing to the assessors that they take up with their representatives in the legislature the enactment of tax laws that both the taxpayers and the assessors can understand, Senator Saxe said: "Let us have tax laws that the who runs may read."

The address of Frank R. Gilbert, deputy state commissioner of education, concluded the evening session of the conference. Dr. Gilbert, talking on school taxation in rural communities, handled in a very able manner a subject of intense interest to local assessors.

Thursday, at the conclusion of the review of recent tax legislation in New York state, by William E. Hannan, state legislative librarian, the conference listened with closest attention to Commissioner Mark Graves as he answered from the platform the many knotty problems presented to him in the question box at the close of Wednesday's session.

LIVING SCALE IS LOWER SINCE WAR

Economics of Country Dom- inated by Its Effects.

New York. The scale of living for the American people as a whole is lower than before the war, according to Dr. W. R. Ingalls, New York mining engineer and economist, who has just completed a survey of the economic prospect for 1924 for the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

Dr. Ingalls, a member of the bureau of economic research, thinks that the immediate outlook for business regarding things needed for direct use is good, but that it is not so good for things that the upbuilding of mines, railways, factories, etc., require.

"I still see the economics of this country, as well as of the rest of the world, dominated by the consequences of the war, and I think that it will be many years before we are clear of them," he says. "In the meanwhile there will be ups and downs in business."

"Underlying everything is the destruction of the war, which brought Austria, Germany and Russia to ruin and impoverished other countries. Not even the United States escaped physical loss."

"Yet in Europe and America alike there developed a mental unbalance in the thoughts of men that in some way the war had produced conditions whereby men could enjoy an improved scale of living without being constrained to work so hard as formerly. There developed other conditions which have put serious obstacles in the way of the international division of labor. These adverse developments may be characterized as the international unbalance."

Farmer Hard Hit.

"In the United States a fundamental consequence of the war was the upsetting of the old economic equilibrium in our domestic system. This produced what I call the primary unbalance; between property and management on the one hand and labor on the other; and the secondary unbalance among classes of labor whereby some of them have benefited greatly while others have suffered acutely. There are tertiary and quaternary unbalances among the divisions and groups of classes of labor."

"The economic discomfort of the farmers is ascribable in part to the international unbalance and in part to the domestic primary unbalance, the farmers being owners of property who have suffered at the hands of town labor. Similarly is the unhappy position of the white-collar classes of labor attributable to the secondary unbalance among workers themselves."

"I do not think that the American people as a whole are enjoying so good a scale of living as pre-war, although some classes have improved their status as a consequence of the unbalance. A fundamental reason for this opinion is that we are not producing enough, which is ascribable in part to the increased diversion of labor to service, and in part to the slackening in town and efficiency per hour by those who are working as direct producers."

"Although engineering and management have done something to offset this, it has not been possible for them to develop a complete compensation within so short a time."

"The effects of these fundamental conditions are bound to be slow. We may go through 1924 with the general feeling that all is well, and indeed things may superficially look so. We may even try to make some sort of a forecast from these fundamental conditions."

All Will Become Clear.

"In a general way we may expect a continuance in activity in the production of consumers' goods and dullness in those branches that pertain especially to capital goods. There will be upswings and downswings, according as producers misread the signs and overproduce some things with the result of accumulation of stocks, whereof orderly digestion must then be awaited. The setback in business activity in the latter half of 1923 is explainable in that way. In all kinds of production we shall for a long time experience the effects of the excessive provision of producing capacity that happened during the war."

"The desire to make use of surplus capacity will contract margins of profits and will be a constant incentive toward overproduction of some kinds of goods. Labor, with no understanding of real conditions, will have more and more in straining ways. Even now we foresee a great strike of bituminous coal miners next April."

"To those who will weigh these words much that seems paradoxical will become clear. Retail traders are doing large business and are optimistic. The manufacturers of many kinds of machinery, on the contrary, find things slow, and in their sentiment range from doubtful to pessimistic. The one has to do with consumers' goods, the other with capital goods."

"Any forecast should, of course, take into account the imminence of German collapse and should allow for surprises elsewhere. American economics are not independent of those of the rest of the world."

"Let anybody draw what deductions from these opinions that he will. My own deduction is that real well-being awaits the removal of a good many economic restrictions, with which we have enmeshed ourselves, and the restoration of the old economic equilibrium."

Europe's Legend.

The legend concerning the naming of Europe is that a beautiful girl is the name of Europa was abducted by Jupiter, in the form of a white bull, and carried to Europe, which continent took its name from her.

Boy Who Borrowed $1 Returns With $500,000

Anderson, Ind. Like the stories of Horatio Alger runs the life romance of Earl Munger, thirty, who left home when he was fourteen with $1 borrowed from his mother.

He is now worth half a million dollars and is head of a manufacturing concern in Detroit.

After borrowing the dollar Munger landed in Detroit and worked in motor plants. Later he induced a friend to help him start a small shop in a shed. When the World war came he started a shipyard factory in Canada.

He is now president of the Ampeg Twist Drill and Tool company of Detroit and he married Roselle Griggs, an old sweetheart, here a few months ago.

Dutch Kids Tutors for Former Crown Prince

Wieringen, Holland.—Children of the fishermen of the island of Wieringen were the chief companions of ex-Crown Prince William of Germany during his stay here after the revolution. When the former prince was not making horsehoes, one of his favorite forms of exercise, or reading, he was strolling about the fields or along the wharfs with his pals, the youngsters. It was from the children, chiefly, that William learned to speak Dutch fluently.

"My best helpers in picking up the language were the children of the fishermen," the ex-prince said just before his departure to join his family at his estate at Oels, Silesia. "The children were not shy like the old folks, some of whom often were awed by my presence, and just as natural as could be. I played with the boys and girls, told the little ones sometimes on my knee, drew for them pictures of animals and houses and trees, and even sketched some of the most picturesque children themselves and gave them results of my drawings."

"By association with the children I learned the language better and easier than if I had devoted all my time to studying books and papers. The brain of a normal youngster is the most curious thing in the world. The best system for an adult to learn another language is to talk regularly with children about nature and about books and pictures. Children just naturally are interested in everything."

William, who is forty-five, has six children of his own, the oldest being eighteen.

Aged Pauper Gets Cash; Now Women Pester Him

Bloomington, Pa.—James Henderson, who recently got a small-sized fortune through the settlement out of court of the contest of the will of Mrs. A. A. Geisinger, Danville's wealthy philanthropic woman, declares he is being "pestered to death" by women.

"I'm just pestered to death with letters from these women since I've been so well advertised. The women seem to know a lot more about me than I know about myself—my finances, I mean."

"One woman wrote that she had written me three times, and she thought it was about time I answered her. Another suggested I send her $100. I declare I never knew there were so many women who were after the men quite so strong as they seem to be after me. But it's a far chance any of them have of getting anything out of me."

Insane War Vet Escapes From Guard and "Jacket"

Washington.—A straight-jacket and a special guard meant little to Clifford L. Tate of Greensboro, N. C., when the train on which he was prisoner reached this city, the home of his brother, J. N. Tate.

Waking in the morning to find the train halted in the Union station and his guard snoring, Tate stroled from the car, spoke to an unidentified sailor and requested him to carve away the straight-jacket. This request complied with, Tate tossed the leather casing into a passing automobile and when he was found after hours of searching by the police he was comfortably asleep in his brother's home.

Tate is a patient of the veterans' bureau and was en route from Atlanta to Perryville, Md. Physicians say he is insane.

Device Used to Halt Auto at Rail Crossing

Stockholm.—Swedish railroads have tested recently, and found successful, a device to warn automobilists, as they approach grade crossings, of the coming of a train.

When a train is 1,000 feet from a crossing electricity is called into play to drop a bar over the vehicle road. From it hang light chains, which, striking against the car, give warning of the oncoming train. After the train has passed the bar automatically is raised. Red and white lights help to emphasize the warning.

Constipation is ruinous to children—keep yours healthy with Kellogg's Bran

Constipation undermines a child's health. It saps his energy and makes him listless. It can lead to more than 40 other serious diseases. Mothers should take immediate steps to remove, safely and surely, the dangerous poisons from his system.

Kellogg's Bran—because it is ALL bran—brings permanent relief. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. That is why Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is universally recommended by doctors. They know it brings results.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to give permanent relief in the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. Kellogg's Bran acts on the intestines exactly as nature acts. It sweeps and cleans and purifies them. It makes them function naturally and regularly. It allows you to discontinue forever the use of harmful, habit-forming drugs and pills.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is a delightful surprise to the taste—particularly if one has tried ordinary unpalatable bran. Kellogg's Bran has a delicious, crisp, nut-like flavor—an exclusive flavor. It is most enjoyable with milk or cream, sprinkled over other cereals or cooked with hot cereals. Try it in bread, muffins, griddle cakes and other recipes given on every package.

Have your children eat it regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Kellogg's Bran is made at Battle Creek and sold at all grocers. It is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and clubs. Ask for it at your restaurant.

If you were Robinson Crusoe...

If you were alone with yourself—really alone, like Robinson Crusoe on his desert island—how long would you be able to interest yourself in You? After all, it's the woman who knows something about what's happening in Europe and why, and can tell a "bill of lading" from a "promissory note" that's most interesting to herself and to others. And she's generally one who has appreciated the value of laundry service in cutting down her housework hours. Prim-Prest, the fully finished laundry service, has made her washday as easy as turning on the electric lights.

Party Primary for 9 Cities

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb. 22.—Nine cities in the state which now have non-partisan primaries for the election of city officials would have partisan primaries under a bill introduced in the State Legislature.

Because the measure is sponsored by the chairman of the Senate and Assembly Judiciary committees, one a Democrat and the other a Republican, it is expected it will be enacted into law.

The cities which would be affected by the bill include Buffalo, Saratoga Springs, Mechanville, Sherrill, Branon, Newburgh, Auburn, Watervliet and Watertown.

Watertown is the home of Speaker Macdonald, Republican leader of the Assembly. He is strong for the bill because he says the non-partisan primaries in his city have been nothing more than a "joke."

The bill is sponsored in the upper house by Senator Schackno of New York, and by Assemblyman Jenks of Broome in the Assembly. Both men declare they are certain that the bill is for the best interest of good government.

"I introduced the bill because I believe that under the form of government now in vogue in America there can be no responsible government except by political partisanship," declared Mr. Jenks.

Advocates of the bill claim that the voters do not take any interest in the primary election where the non-partisan plan is in effect. They also assert that it does not give cities the best kind of officials that could be obtained by partisan primaries.

It is possible that the bill will be the subject of a hearing next week. Little opposition is expected to it by the men who introduced it.

Photographer Flies Into Vesuvius Crater.

Umberto Romagnoli

Umberto Romagnoli, of the International Newsreel Corporation, is alive today, after one of the most daring feats in the annals of photography. With a pilot, he flew in a seaplane inside the crater of Mount Vesuvius, in Italy, twenty-seven minutes. Natives reported it a man dead, and it was not until Romagnoli reappeared in Naples that it was learned the flight was deliberately made. Although the fliers wore gas masks, Romagnoli became unconscious after leaving the crater, but not until he had made his pictures.

BUTTONS.

The Why, When and Where of Fashions.

The man who poked fun at his wife because of the seemingly countless buttons on her dress or waist must have forgotten that his brethren buttoned their coats with 33 buttons, not more than three centuries ago.

There was a great deal more of the "pride in apparel" in the olden days and it showed in buttons, too. Legislators in England and France tried to curb the indulgence in luxuries and failed, of course, and ladies and gentlemen wore buttons of jewels set in gold and silver in the XVII century.

Although starting late, America wrote some of the most useful chapters in the history of buttons. It was S. Williston, of Massachusetts, who invented in 1827 machinery to cover metals with cloth. Today a very large proportion of our buttons are of vegetable ivory made of a South American nut. A. W. Critchlow, also of Massachusetts, invented a method of manufacturing such buttons in 1859.

Your undies, and other apparel are fastened with pearl buttons. Formerly they were made of Japanese shells. But in 1890 J. F. Boepple, of Iowa, discovered that shells of the Mississippi river yield an excellent substitute. The need for substitutes became truly great in buttons, so the Germans found an excellent one in whet.

WASHINGTON KNEW

By JOHN T. ADAMS.

Chairman of the Republican National Committee

Such a convention persuaded leaders in many other states to follow his example. It may be said his leadership in a large measure made the convention possible.

He was elected President of the convention. Throughout its deliberations he wielded tremendous influence, not only with the delegates composing that body, but with the people of the country, who were watching with interest and considerable misgivings its deliberations.

To Washington, Madison, Samuel Adams, Hamilton, Randolph, Franklin and a few other leaders is due the fact that this attempt of the colonies to form a stable government did not fail.

Washington's work in the Constitutional Convention is thought by many to be the most important of his life, although it is overshadowed in the public mind by his heroic achievements as commander-in-chief of the Revolutionary army which won independence for the American colonies, and his record as the first President of the United States.

Those today who criticize the Constitution are raising no objections that were not heard in Washington's time. Human nature is practically the same in all generations. Every power vested in the judiciary, the executive or either branch of the Congress by the Constitution met with strenuous objections at the hands of some faction in the Constitutional Convention. Some thought it went too far, while others thought it did not go far enough. There were class and sectional divisions in that convention.

The document which is our charter of government as finally adopted has been described as "the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man." It has withstood the test of time and every crisis, even that of civil war. Under it this government has functioned 135 years. Our form of government today is acknowledged to be the best of any in the world.

No more conclusive proof of the wisdom of Washington and his associates is possible. Their example of submerging personal, class and sectional differences and interests to serve the common good and public welfare is one of the most inspiring in American history.

COMING—"THUNDERING DAWN"

Washington's Day
at High School

Students Make Speeches on "The Father of Our Country"—Professor Edwards Gives Address—Societies Are Very Busy—Boys' Class Basketball Schedule.

Thursday morning Washington's Birthday was celebrated at the high school by three speeches concerning the "Father of Our Country." The first speech was made by Bernard Galvin and was on "The Characteristics of Washington." by McKinley. The second number was "An Ode for Washington's Birthday," by Holmes, given by Elizabeth Feeney. The last was "Mutations of Time," by Chauncey M. Depew, given by Herbert Schroeder. The selections were all very interesting and were given in good style.

After this program, Mr. Hall, of the local Y. M. C. A., introduced Professor Edwards, of St. Stephen's College, who spoke at the H-Y meeting.

Professor Edwards gave a short, but interesting address on working for a living.

He said that he was pleased by the percentage of Kingston High School students who go to college after high school. "The best education was knocking around the world and getting the point of view of the other fellow. The fellow who does this will be a better man for his life," he said. "I never saw a man who never worked for a living."

This sounded rather queer until the professor explained what he meant by work. "Work is what you do just for the money you get from it. We should not spend our lives trying to gather a fortune by doing something that we do not like, but which will bring us money. We should choose some profession which we would do whether we get any money or not for it. His last admonition was "Never to work for a living."

The Latin Society held a meeting Tuesday night. After the few business matters were transacted, a short program was enjoyed. Ruth Clark gave an original composition on "The Customs and Manners of the Greeks." It was very interesting as well as instructive. Milton Katz read an original letter which might have been written to a father by a son in the old days of Rome. The club decided to present a play. All the arrangements have been left in the hands of Catherine McCormack. President Rosenthal announced that Mr. Perry will speak at the next meeting.

The Prisma has offered three prizes of ten dollars each to go to the pupil in either the Freshman, Sophomore or Junior classes, who has the highest class and recent averages for the past year. The Prisma girls are very active and are making money by selling candy in the corridors after school, also by selling book covers.

Persons who desire to hear the Phyllis Trio concert should secure their tickets now so that they may be able to exchange them for reserved seat tickets Monday, February 25. The three concerts are under the auspices of the High School Athletic Association and will be held on February 29th, March 14th and April 4th.

At the first concert the trio will be assisted by Miss Marjorie E. Meyer, soprano. At the second, by Judson House, tenor, and at the third, by Earle Tuckerman, baritone. The above artists are well known to all music lovers and are very popular.

There were no class games for the boys this week. Following is the schedule for boys' games:

February 29, Juniors vs. Sophomores; Freshmen vs. Seniors.
March 7, Seniors vs. Sophomores; Juniors vs. Freshmen.

March 14, Freshmen vs. Sophomores; Seniors vs. Juniors.
March 21, Seniors vs. Freshmen; Sophomores vs. Juniors.

March 28, Juniors vs. Freshmen; Seniors vs. Sophomores.

The girls have been very busy in athletics under the direction of Miss Tidquist. Thursday afternoon the Freshmen girls defeated the Seniors in a hard fought basketball game by a 17 to 15 score. Edith Gavitt and Hilda Port starred for the Seniors. Beverly Schmidt and M. Pittsworth starred for the Freshmen. The score:

Attorney-General H. M. Daugherty, of Ohio, is under bitter attack in the United States Senate in connection with the oil leases. Representative John N. Garner, Democrat, of Texas, is the author of the income tax bill passed by the House, sitting as a committee of the whole. W. P. G. Harding, head of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, has been selected as High Commissioner of the League of Nations to control the finances of Hungary, which is to be granted a 100,000,000 dollar loan. Governor A. E. Smith, of New York, mentioned as a possibility for the Democratic Presidential nomination, in an interview declared he was "not a candidate for any office." Henry P. Fletcher, of Pennsylvania, American Ambassador to Belgium, has been promoted to be Ambassador to Italy. It is believed Mr. Fletcher will be succeeded in Brussels by William Phillips, Under Secretary of State in Washington. French Premier Poincaré has succeeded in increasing all taxes 20 per cent in an effort to stabilize the franc.

A THRILLING DRAMA THAT YOU'LL NEVER FORGET!

Here is a super picture in every sense of the word! It is the most spectacular love-drama ever filmed. Never have you seen a picture so filled with stupendous scenic effects and big moments. See the mad, raging typhoon which tears, people and cities skyward and dash them to destruction! See the most stupendous catastrophe ever staged for a screen production, a huge tidal wave that levels entire islands and sweeps a whole city out to sea.

No less tumultuous and awe-inspiring is the gripping love-drama which unfolds with such a background. A man, once he had been all a man should be, now in the depths of despair and degeneracy, but still the idol of two women. One glared in his helplessness and sought to drag him deeper; the other saw him as he had been and she fought like a tigress to arouse his latent manhood.

It is a pulsating drama of life pictured with the utmost realism—it will hold you, thrill you and finally give you the surprise of your life! Do not fail to see a real "super-picture!"

LAST OF THE CRUISER TACOMA.

This first picture of the U. S. Cruiser Tacoma shows her wrecked on the rocks outside Vera Cruz, Mexico, to which she had been dispatched to protect American interests. It was reported she grounded in a gale because Mexican rebels had removed navigation lights. In a storm which swept her later Captain Sparrow, her commander, and two wireless men who had remained on board were killed.

MAGNATES OF INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

COBB STILL ATHLETE AFTER TWENTY YEARS

Finished Strong Last Fall and Can Go Another Year.

Ty Cobb came striding down Peacock alley at the Congress hotel, in Chicago. There was no mistaking the Georgia Peach. There was grace in his walk. There was suggestion of the strength and dash he has shown on the bases all his baseball life.

Even the rappers adorning Peacock alley gave him an extra glance. He was different from the other athletes in the hotel parade, writes Roger Dwyer in the Baltimore News.

Twenty years of baseball, 20 years of desperate sliding, 20 years of giving every ounce of his energy, didn't show in the frame of this star from the South.

As Ty draws closer his face tells what his well-knit frame hides. He is perceptibly getting old. Lines are creeping out from the eyes, fat is filling out the jaws. The 20 years are plainly indurated.

The Georgia Peach stops and answers a question about the recent report that he would retire from active competition next spring and manage Detroit from the bench.

No! He will play just one more year. He finished strong in the race last fall and feels that he can go one more year at top speed.

He has determined upon one thing—he will not drag out his career until he is but a shadow of his former greatness and the fans leer him for being unable to run, to slide and to hit as of old. He never wants to hear the word "has been" ringing in his ears. "Without a bit of exaggeration, he says he will quit while he is still good."

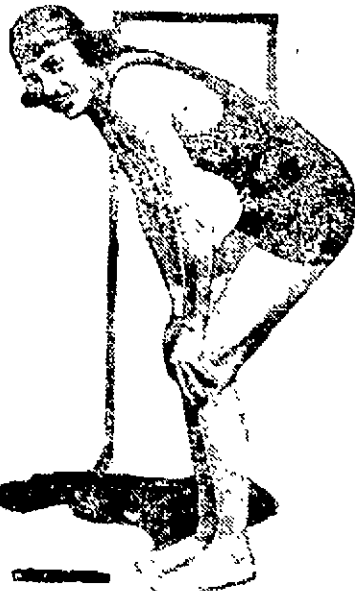

Hart Gets Tangled With Giants' First Baseman

Commenting on the umpires and their mistakes, which as usual featured the world's series, a sport scribbler of one play: "Umpire Bob Hart got himself all tangled up with George Kelly in a mixup on an attempted double play by the New York infield."

"With one out and Witt on first Dugan crashed a savage drive in the direction of Greb, who snatched up the ball and threw quickly to Frisch with the idea of getting two men. Hart was so anxious to get close to the play that he collided with Kelly. The ball fell out of Kelly's hands."

"From the press box it appeared as if a double play would have resulted had Hart kept out of the way. His action was hardly excusable. Anyhow, four umpires on one playing field does not add to the game by any means. If they must have four they should chase two of them down the foul lines to judge balls driven to the pastures."

Letters Are Given Girls

Ruth Smith, shown in the photograph, with her sister, received letter awards from the Women's Athletic Association of Ohio, for their swimming prowess, and at once raised a storm of protest among the male athletes of Ohio State university, who claim that girls should not receive "letters" formed the same as football insignias.

Like All the Rest.

A terrible tragedy is reported from Suburbia. It appears that a lady recently wrote to an evening paper to say that she, at least, had found the perfect husband. Unfortunately her letter was never published, as the gentleman in question forgot to post it.

National League Ump Is Good Golf Player

Ernest Claiborne Quigley, National league umpire, and director of athletics at St. Mary's college, Kansas, is an ardent golfer. He is likewise a pretty good player, as shown by his victory in the tournament which the Kansas conference coaches and officials held at the Topeka Country club recently. Quigley won the event with a 79. He is well known as a football official, having been one of the arbiters in the Harvard-Yale game at Cambridge this year.

Murchison Is Winner

Loren Murchison, wearing the colors of the Newark A. C., won all three of the special sprint races held by the Newark A. C. at the armory of the One Hundred and Second engineers, New York city. He ran to his best form and beat a quintet of the best sprinters in the country in sensational style in each event.

Sparring Squibs

The largest football stadium in the country is the Yale bowl, seating 82,000 people.

Basketball is getting so popular in Indiana that parents who once named their boys James will be changing it to Gryn.

A tennis player who recently appeared in a north of England tournament played with racket in each hand.

The first royal jockey to ride in the flat races of England and France was the Comte d'Artois, between 1770 and 1780.

There is no standard size for a basketball court, but it must be between 60 and 94 feet long and 35 to 50 feet wide.

Football, formerly considered by Germans as being too rough, has become one of the most popular games in that country.

A scientist has gone to Haiti to study ants, which closely resemble light promoters in that their strength lies in their jaws.

Joe Devine, scouting in California for the Pittsburgh club, has signed a young catcher named Dan Alley, who hails from around Oakland.

Nearly the entire population of the state of Nevada could find seating accommodations in the new stadium of the University of California.

Wig and Robes Expensive.

The wig and robes of an ordinary English judge cost approximately $2,000. The lord chancellor, the attorney general, the lord chief justice, the master of the rolls and lord justices of appeal are even more expensively dressed.

Where the Marble canyon merges into the Grand canyon the plateau is cut at right angles by the Canyon of the Little Colorado, and where these three come together the scenery is startling in its weirdness and awful loneliness. This is believed to be the point at which the canyon was first seen by white man.

In 1540 Cardenas, a Spanish missionary, having heard of a great chasm which the Indians held in reverence and fear, persuaded some of them to guide him to it.

But these wilderness Indians had no desire to encourage the exploration of their territory; so, instead of reaching the canyon in a few hours, as they easily could have done, they led the missionary for four days through the most difficult and perilous part of the wilderness, bringing him out finally upon the rim of the gorge at this desolate spot.

Their ruse was not without success. Cardenas reported the existence of the canyon, but nothing further was done about exploring it until three centuries later, when Major Powell, in 1869, made his first thrilling trip through the entire length.

Charcoal.

It has been found that charcoal, when in what is known as the "active" condition, in which it absorbs certain gases, and when cooled to about the temperature of liquid air, has an even greater attraction for all gases except helium and hydrogen. If the impure helium is passed over such chilled charcoal, the oxygen and nitrogen of the air are caught and held by the charcoal, while helium in a very pure state may be recovered.

Fastening Picture Frame Back.

Used steel photograph needles are valuable for fastening the backs in picture frames, especially when the frames are small and delicately constructed, says Popular Science Monthly. The needles will not split the wood and can be pressed into place without hammering.

All these nations protested that the tonnage allotted to them is too small.

Brazil and Chile are demanding the same amount of tonnage as was allotted to Argentina.

Exploration of Canyon Was Delayed by Ruse

Through miles of wild canyons and gorges the Colorado rushes, gathering sediment and debris as it goes. Finally it enters the Marble canyon in Utah. This gorge, the beginning of the Grand canyon, is exquisite, the bare strata of richly colored marble gleaming with all the brilliancy of an adamant rainbow, says Vernon Quinn's Beautiful America.

Where the Marble canyon merges into the Grand canyon the plateau is cut at right angles by the Canyon of the Little Colorado, and where these three come together the scenery is startling in its weirdness and awful loneliness. This is believed to be the point at which the canyon was first seen by white man.

In 1540 Cardenas, a Spanish missionary, having heard of a great chasm which the Indians held in reverence and fear, persuaded some of them to guide him to it.

But these wilderness Indians had no desire to encourage the exploration of their territory; so, instead of reaching the canyon in a few hours, as they easily could have done, they led the missionary for four days through the most difficult and perilous part of the wilderness, bringing him out finally upon the rim of the gorge at this desolate spot.

Their ruse was not without success. Cardenas reported the existence of the canyon, but nothing further was done about exploring it until three centuries later, when Major Powell, in 1869, made his first thrilling trip through the entire length.

Charcoal.

It has been found that charcoal, when in what is known as the "active" condition, in which it absorbs certain gases, and when cooled to about the temperature of liquid air, has an even greater attraction for all gases except helium and hydrogen. If the impure helium is passed over such chilled charcoal, the oxygen and nitrogen of the air are caught and held by the charcoal, while helium in a very pure state may be recovered.

MISSOURI SCENE OF GREAT QUAKE

Recent reports from various points in the Mississippi valley telling of slight earthquake shocks are unusual; but they seem extraordinary, like extremes of temperature and other out-of-the-way weather phenomena, only because man's memory is short, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"One of the world's greatest earthquakes, and certainly the most severe in America since the days of Columbus, occurred in the heart of the Mississippi valley in 1811 and 1812," continues the bulletin. "Fortunately there were few towns and no bridges and dams and railroads to be destroyed in those days, for the pioneers had just begun the Westward push that was quickly to spread population and development all the way to the Pacific.

Destruction in Settlements. "The center of the disturbances was almost exactly in the bed of the Mississippi river, about 50 miles south of the mouth of the Ohio. The little town of Caruthersville, in what is now the southeast corner of Missouri, lay where the quakes were greatest. It was totally destroyed, though its inhabitants escaped both falling timbers and ever waves and found refuge on a nearby hill. New Madrid, on the river a few miles to the north, suffered almost as much.

"This region has practically no hard rocks, but consists of beds of clay and several thousand feet deep. It is in such formations that earthquakes cause greatest damage since the relatively loose ground is easily moved, great earth billows roll, and cracks form."

The Mad River Run Backward, which is told so quietly, to the knowledge of past two generations, was momentarily obstructed near New Madrid. Its waters were violently upstream and sloshed from side to side, destroying numerous boats at that time. For emporium, Great fissures opened in the surrounding country and jets of water spouted out as the tide in nature's disastrous American earthquake. Charleston S C 75 years later, smogginus did not exist in those days, but the tremors of the great Mississippi valley earthquake were actualized as far north as the Canadian border and as far south as New Orleans. A hundred miles to the east Indians were shaken from mountain tops.

Created Numerous Lakes.
The earthquake of 1811-12 is not only a dim memory. It left its scars deep in the countryside. Reel Lake, 14 miles long and four or five wide, in the northwest corner of the state was its greatest geographic tribulation. A heavily forested section sank to form this new body of water, and the giant stumps of thousands of trees protruding from parts of the lake tell the story to this day. The land about the lake retains the scars of the huge billows into which it was thrown, and which became apparent when the section is viewed from an airplane.

supplied by the earthquake west of the Arkansas. Careful geological examination still discloses traces of deep lakes that were opened up in 1811 which time, weather and vegetation have not been able to hide."

Largest Swimming Pool
San Francisco has a new swimming pool which is said to be the largest in the world. It is 1,000 feet long, 100 feet wide, except for a center lane which is 300 feet wide to provide for a racing course across the pool. The depth varies from 3 to 14 feet, and the cost of the pool was $1,000,000.

For folks who consider life on Main Street "dreadful" there may be a change in the picture of life where there isn't even a Main Street. "The only roads in our county are creekbeds," writes Olive Marsh. "We do not live in a town at all, and there is not a street of any kind within miles of us—'Main' or otherwise."

the community center, which most all other projects is managed by two women together, with five of the community elected by the role. Since Miss Marsh and Miss Weston came to Carr Creek, they have secured funds to build a seven-room bathhouse, which is in use not only for school purposes, but for clubs and other community gatherings, for monthly clothing sale held by the women, and for the free lending library which occupies one of the rooms. The center now about 2,500 val-

A three-room cottage has also been built, in which Miss Marsh and Weston live, and in which for the past year two orphan boys have lived, working for their board attending school. A one-room building is nearly finished, and a new building, "Singing Carr Creek school," to serve as a dormitory for orphan children, is about to be begun. The fund for its construction being nearly completed. The center owns twenty acres of land. The Community club has made a trail across a mountain, so that the children in an adjacent section of the school district need not go to school without having to travel four miles around by the road. There has also been built two foot-bridges across the creek at needed points, to save the shaky footlogs which got broken out with every heavy rain. Cause of Itch.
Itch, or scabies, is caused by the presence of larvae or mature specimens of Acarus scabiei. The itch mite was known to the Greeks and Romans; the cause was probably not recognized before the nineteenth century. A case was reported in 1827 wherein the skin of the patient was estimated to contain 7,000,000 and 2,000,000 mites. The disease is present in 150 per cent of all skin diseases in the United States.

After planting the flag into strips the men floated one section into a braid which patterned after the manner of an Indian braids her hair and then tied it a hard knot. Another party was armed and knotted until it resembled the twist of Kentucky tobacco. The wind became fierce before the end of the blow was realized and it proved unsafe for a few hours to a man up with a storm flag.

Prof. Edwards's Second Lecture

To Hi-Y Members on European Conditions—Says Lack of the Spirit of Cooperation is Cause of Europe's Disturbances—Basketball Games.

A regular Hi-Y meeting was held at the "Y" rooms Thursday night. After the eats had been put away, a short business meeting was held. Messenger read the minutes of the last meeting. Stumpf gave the report of the sleighload committee. They decided to hold a sleighload on March 5. Fred Anderson led the devotions, reading a portion of the 1st chapter of Matthew and also of the 15th chapter. Goldberg gave a short talk about the spirit of the Combination five.

Professor Edwards then presented the second of his three lectures on "European Conditions." He said that as an orator he could not compare with the Irishman who had just spoken. This brought a great roar of laughter.

The frame has taken a downward trend, which means another lowering of the standard of civilization. It means that tourists will have good times in France at low cost. This is good for the tourist, but bad for France. When a person is over in Europe, many of the proverbs and Biblical sayings become applicable. The saying about being our "brother's keeper" becomes practical in Europe.

Prof. Edwards said that Europe does not need money. The natural resources of Europe are much greater than those of the United States. The workmen there are more skilled than in the United States. There are more laborers over there who do the hard daily work. The big woods in our country cannot compare with the large forests of Russia and Finland. The great mines of the Ruhr valley are two or three times larger than those of this country. Yet they are always receiving money from different countries when they could be earning it themselves.

The center of civilization was Europe. It is now in the United States. The reason for the decay of civilization and the lack of developing the great natural resources are lack of good will. Everybody is fighting everybody else. Each country is selfishly trying to get more land. Nowadays there is a new country, Norway 200 miles in some parts of Europe. There must be good will to do business and since it is entirely lacking in Europe the social decline will keep going.

We do not realize in the United States that what any country over in Europe does has a direct bearing on some other country. A civil war in Russia might mean that hundreds of cotton vessels in Scotland are put out of work.

The social and moral degradation of the country is astounding. People who used to be high up in social life are now trying to be respectable but are having a hard time of it. They would do anything for a little American money.

The lack of good will and friendship has made the reconstruction after the war impossible. The many little countries make it very hard.

The United States is the 41st country that has been on top of the world in the last 45 years. The ability of the United States to come up as it has and finally to reach the top is the great spirit of cooperation. This spirit is lacking in Europe and has done a great deal in bringing on the present conditions.

After Prof. Edwards's speech, discussion was held on his speeches in the next room.

After the discussion regular Hi-Y basketball games were held. In the first game the Senecas defeated the Hokums 35 to 24. Perry and Riseley starred for the winners. Shults and Stumpf starred for the losers.

Essay on Cow

School boy's essay on a cow: "The cow is a noble and a kindhearted creature. The man who looks after her is called a cowherd, but for all that he is no coward. Cows exist by means of oxygen in the atmosphere. By the cow the milk is made. I know this to be true, for I have seen the milk made by the cow."

"The cow has been introduced into song. There is an old song called the 'Soldier's Steer.' This was written to Beef Flat, as was also the very pathetic ballad, 'For Hoffer and Hoffer.' To call a cow an ox is to make a bull. Crotches for cows are called acorns. A cow likes resting. It will sleep in a shed and lie on the grass, but it will not stretch itself on a couch. A cow does not carry on a argument very obstinately. It will soon give wher. Cows seem to do pretty well, for even at death they make both ends meet. I can't think how it is that so many calves die young. Perhaps the butcher could reveal the secret."

Deadlock of 1855-56

The most protracted tieup of congressional business because of a failure to elect a speaker occurred in the winter of 1855-1856 in the Thirty-fourth congress. There were 133 viva voce votes taken before Nathaniel P. Banks, representative from Massachusetts of the American anti-slavery party, was elected by a plurality vote. Banks went to the Thirty-fifth congress as a Republican. The voting for a speaker for the Thirty-fifth congress began as usual the opening day of congress, December 3, 1856. Banks was elected February 2, 1856, two months later. The clerk of the house of representatives presided in the absence of the speaker.—Detroit News.
